A BEGGARLY ARGUMENT.

tion to purchase the electric light plant.

The directors of the company in January when they approached the council made full use of the argument that having established the lighting system at an early stage of the town's history when the future was uncertain and dividends in the prospective distance they were entitled to some consideration by the council. This argument was backed by the statement that no dividends have been declared by the company, the total carnings of the system having been invested in extensions to the plant.

The flabbiness of such argument is readily apparent. The Electric Light Co. established the lighting system for the philanthropic purpose of making amoney. During the past ten years the company have been protected by an exclusive franchise and have enjoyed the opportunities of a mionopoly. That the town has been unusually patient in insisting on its rights in matter of the light furnished has been evidenced by the nature of the light supplied. If under such circumstances matter of the light furnished has been swidenced by the nature of the light supplied. If under such circumstances the Electric Lighting Co. have failed to make money they may credit their lailure to the bungling method in which they have handled a splendid opportunity. Had the company installed an efficient plant and reduced the charges for lighting below the high level of coal oil expense the financial distory of the company would have lower and ask protection from the natural results of their mistakes is an utitude which if assumed by any mer-

The purchase of the lighting system, if made, should be on the basis of the present and actual value of the plant, not on the sentimental basis of the tompsay's bespecience in 'bygene days.

The famous advice of Ben Frank-lin was never more opportune than to the citizens of Edmonton in con-nection with the proposition to pur-chase the Electric Light plant.

nection with the proposition to purchase the Electric Light plant.

Municipal ownership of the electric light system, and all other public stilled system, and all other public difference of the plant of the proposition. The ratephyers should consent to no expenditure of public money without understanding clearly the value to be received for such expenditure. True a valuation has been placed on the electric light plant, but it was done mader the auspices of the company and by a gentleman whose employers naturally desire to see the proposed saie and extension of the plant take foliace. Even Mr. Pym recommended the council to demand from the company a detailed inventory of the plant. Not stack stated next hap been gree sented to the council and no deal should be considered by the ratepaying until an itemized statement is forthcoming of the value to be received for their money.

IN RELATION TO STEEL USED IN MANUFACTURING

ROCK ISLAND PLOWS.

Soft Center Steel as used in the manufacturing of Plows, is a combination of very soft and tough steel plows, is a combination of very soft and tough steel plows. another steel of hard nature. The soft steel being in the centre and the hard stock in the surface, as its name implies.

It is prepared in about the following manner: Fhe soft plate having been rolled to a certain thickness and width according to the size of the finished plate it is desired to make, is placed in a mould and a fine quality of steel melted in a crucible, the old fashioned way, is poured into the mould, while fluid, on both sides of the soft plates, thus knitting and welding the two steels together and forming what is called an ingot or block, which in size averages 6 inches thick, 12 inches wide and 20 inches long, weighing something over 200 pounds.

The next stee taken in the maninulation of the inext is

The next step taken in the manipulation of the ingot is to put it in a furnace until it reaches a welding heat, when it is placed under a powerful steam harmer. By this operation the ingot is flattened, and at the same time more thoroughly welded together. It is now again heated to the proper degree. Then passed through a set of rollers which reduces the thickness, but each layer of the stel retaining the same relative thickness. After the first rolling, in some caser, the slab is taken to the pickling bath to remove all scales and dirt. After which it is bath to remove all scales and dirt. After which it is again heated and passed through the roller unit the de sired thickness is obtained, resulting in a sound slab of steel of 12 to 20 feet in length, 12 or more inches wide, by 3-16, 1-4, or 9-32 inches thick, as may be contemplated comprising, however, three distinct layers, viz. Hard, soft, and hard of equal thickness.

It now goes into a furnace for annealing, and finally through finishing rolls for impating a smooth surface, when it is ready for the shewring machines, to be cut into regular shapes, such as Mould Boards, Shares, Land Sides, Etc., Etc.

Owing to the softness and toughness of the center layer of the steel which is not affected by our tempering process that the Mould Boards, Shares, Etc., are subjected to, we are able to bring the surface or outer layers of the shape to a very high temper, so that a good hard file will not take hold of or cut it, and thus have a very strong plate.

A piece of this steel can be bent over cold without breaking, though of course the surface steel must necessarily be fractured in an operation so severe. It may be of interest to know that soft center steel is exclusively an American steel, made in no other country, although it is been attempted elsewhere, but without success.

Being a late production, it is strictly modern in every respect. Combines every feature essential to good work, and is constructed of material which careful inspection ensures to be good. On the floor its attractive outline and finish secures the interest of every farmer who may see it. And in the field its uniform good work cannot fail to make it satisfactory in every way. Its record for the past year hat been in many respects phenomenal, and as several improvements have been recently added to it is will beyond question retain the position, which its good work and actual merits have gained for it—The Leader of the High Lift Sulky.
